

v.19 works of the flesh

v.22 Fruit of the spirit

v.21 just as I also told you in time past, that those who practice such things repentance

will not inherit the kingdom of God

Luther

A 80 It is one thing to be aroused by the flesh and not to tolerate its desires any further, but to walk and to withstand by the Spirit; it is quite another thing to give in to the flesh and to do its works with a snug air, to persist in them...

P 80 Nevertheless, it sometimes happens that saints may lapse and gratify the desires of their flesh... But no matter how great these sins were, they were not committed intentionally, they were committed because of weakness. In addition, when they were admonished these men did not persist stubbornly in their sins but returned to their senses. Later on (6:1) Paul commands that such men be received, instructed, and reentered, saying: "If a man is overtaken, etc."

p81 ... this passage provides us with the greatest possible comfort when it tells us that it is impossible to live without any desires and temptations of the flesh, in fact, without sin. [we are not im-passioned.]

If we are ignorant of or deny the weakness of believers, we will have a hypocritical righteousness. When we are aware of our uncleanness of flesh, it keeps us from being puffed up.

We strive to avoid the works; we can't avoid the desires

We don't trust in our own righteousness. A Christian struggles with sin, continually.

v.19 Now the works of the flesh are evident...
